Union State Convention.

A State Convention will be held in the Hall of the House of Representatives, in Harrisburgh, Pa., on Wednesday, the 7th day of March, A. D. 1866, at 12 o'clock m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, to be supported by the friends of the Union.

The ordeal of war has tried the strength of our Government. Its fire has purified the nation. The defence of the nation's life has demonstrated who were its friends. The principles vindicated in the field must be preserved in the councils of the nation. The sacrificial day of freedom must be struck once more. All the friends of our Government, and all who were loyal to the cause of the Union, and in our late struggle, are earnestly requested to unite in sending delegates to represent them in said Convention.

By order of the Union State Central Committee

JOHN CESSNA, Chairman.

Attest

GEO. W. HAMERSLY, A. W. BUCKLEY, } Secretaries.

Republican County Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the Republican County Committee will be held at the Grand Jury Room in the Court House in Meadville on Tuesday, February 13th, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting delegates to represent Crawford county in the State Convention to be held at Harrisburg March 7th, 1866, and in conjunction with the Republicans of the county to appoint a Committee of Conference for this Senatorial District, and to transact such other business as may properly be brought before the Committee. Members of the Committee making substitutes must provide them with a letter of substitution, and in no case will a substitute be permitted to represent a District in which he is not a resident.

R. LYLE WHITE, Chairman.

On Precious Stones.

From Percy Scandon.

Possibly the commercial value of color is never exemplified in a stronger manner than in the matter of precious stones. Indeed, jewels often depend upon their hue only for their name and value, the same identically composed precious stone being either an amethyst or a piece of rock crystal, an oriental topaz or a ruby, by the addition or absence of a small portion of mineral pigment of different hue. Thus a piece of rock crystal is comparatively valueless, whilst an amethyst is one of the most costly of jewels, a ruby gem is even more valuable than the diamond, whilst the topaz is of very inferior value. Even the lustre and dash of color often gives a value to the diamond which is far beyond its worth when pure—an instance this of the value of artificial tension. Mr. Harry Emanuel, of our work on precious stones, which I find does the material for this article, illustrates this fact by stating that a diamond the worth of which uncolored would have been (from its weight, roughness and three quarters) only £22 was lately sold for £400 in consequence of possessing a vivid green tint.

Although the diamond is not really the most valuable of jewels, as it is supposed to have precedence of all other gems, we shall speak of it first. Possibly, however, its commercial value is most considerable of all, and it is the subject of more attention to a great extent than any other. In times of commotion (kings or princes, and the wealthy—generally subject to suffer from sweeping changes—look upon diamonds as their best friend, their resources, in fact, to the attention of the lapidary. What peculiarity is to most precious stones are to value. They are the concentrated essence of wealth—a king's ransom in the compass of a marble.

The diamond, like most other jewels, is found generally in granitic gravel, and in portions of alluvial distributed over the whole world. But they are mainly to be found in tropical countries. It would seem that where the sun shines with the most vertical rays, there we find the most gorgeous colors, there also in the depths of the earth the vivid lustre of this gem shines the brightest, and assumes the largest proportions. The mines underground bloom as gorgeously as the flowers above. The diamond, as we all know, is composed of pure carbon crystallized, and is the hardest known substance. And on this quality, upon which much of its value depends, lies in many instances its own cause of its destruction. The old rude test of its genuineness being to place it upon an anvil and to strike it forcibly with a hammer, the idea being that if pure, it would rather break the hammer or burst itself in the anvil than split. Of course many valuable diamonds have been destroyed by this ignorant trial in the past. The diamond is by no means always colorless. It is sometimes yellow, red, pink, brown, green, black, and sometimes opalescent, the admixture of color depending in some cases upon a metallic oxide. The Indian diamond appears to be the most prized in the market. Newton, from its great power of refracting and dispersing light which compared with glass, came to the conclusion that it was combustible, a scientific forecast, which Lavoisier verified by burning it in oxygen, and obtaining as a result carbonic acid. Although our analysis of this gem is perfect, all efforts have failed to compound it, indeed, chemistry is wholly at fault to produce artificially any of the precious gems, with the exception of the ruby, small specimens of which have actually been produced in the laboratory. The diamond is split easily with the grain, but it is upon the tact and judgment with which it is cut and polished that much of its value depends. The English were at one time famous as gem cutters, but the art is now wholly lost among us, and most of the fine gems are now intrusted to Dutch Jews. The gem is cut upon a wheel smeared with diamond dust, the only material that effectually touches it, and it is polished in the same manner, a steel disk being employed for the purpose, smeared with the fine powder, and revolving at a speed equal to one use of steam power. At the present time the most fashionable form is the double cut which presents a great number of facets, rendering the flesh of the gem very brilliant. The rose cut, such as we find in old diamonds, is much less sparkling, as it has a very much less number of facets, and a great extension of table on the upper surface. The Indian diamond cut is the least in much of its gem as possible when cutting an instance of this was seen in the Great Exhibition of 1851, where the Koh i Noor was exhibited in which the cutting followed apparently the original outline of the stone. Our readers will remember how much this gem disappointed their expectations as it looked like a mere lump of glass. Its weight was then 186 carats. In the interval between this and the last exhibition it was, after much consultation, given into the hands of M. Coster of Amsterdam, who recut it with such skill that, although it lost in the process 80 carats, it gained approximately in value, and was transferred at once into a blaze of light. When diamonds are difficult to split, without fear of great loss, they are sometimes sawn with the wire dipped into a sawbow and mounted with diamond powder and olive oil. Rose cut diamonds are now coming much into fashion as they are very brilliant in appearance at a very small expense of stone. It is really wonderful the delicacy with which these gems are cut, considering the smallness of their size, as many as fifteen hundred having been known to weigh only one carat.

The most valuable of all jewels, however, is the ruby. This precious stone depends upon its color, as we have said before, for its value. The ruby, sapphire, and oriental topaz are composed of identically the same materials, the red sapphire is truly the ruby, the sapphire the yellow ruby or topaz. They are all termed Corundums, an Indian name. The ruby is the next hardest thing in nature after the diamond. The finest rubies are found in the kingdom of Ava and in Siam, they are also found in Ceylon and in many parts of Europe.

The King of Birmah takes one of his titles from it, that of "Lord of the Rubies." In Burmah they are a royal monopoly, and none of any value are allowed by law to leave the kingdom. The finding of a fine ruby is made a state event, and a procession of grandees, with soldiers and elephants, are sent out to meet it. The color varies from pale rose to deep red, but the tint that is most highly valued is that of the "pigeon's blood."

Of old, many magical properties were assigned to the ruby. It was considered an amulet against poison, plague, evil thoughts and wicked spirits, and its possession, as a consequence, kept the wearer in health. When he was in danger it was supposed to darken, and to become bright again only on the passing away of peril.

The sapphire, although composed of identically the same elements, with the exception of the coloring matter, is of far less value than the ruby. The color often varies much in the same stone, some portions of the gem being very nearly black, whilst the other is of a light blue. The clever lapidary can correct this by cutting away all the black part, excepting a small spot reserved for the cutlet, or small fine flattened point underneath. When looked at through the table, or broad upper surface of the gem, this point of of dark blue gives by reflection a beautiful azure lustre to the jewel. The ancients used to call all blue stones sapphires, just as they called all red ones either rubies or carbuncles. The sapphire is invested by earlier writers with rare virtues, of course. It was said to be such an enemy to poison, that, if but put into a glass with a spider or other venomous reptile, it would kill it, and a great many other virtues were attributed to it we need scarcely mention.

The cat's eye, as we are told is becoming fashionable, being considered in India, and, what is more strange, even in Europe—that is. We wonder at nothing in the shape of superstition, and can quite understand that a gem of this kind only lately was purchased by a nobleman for £1,000.

The emerald and the beryl have the same chemical composition, and differ only in color. The finest colored emeralds are found in New Granada, in limestone rock. It is also found in Salzburg, and in Siberia. The Spaniards, as is accurate, came into possession of many hundred weight of emeralds when they conquered Peru, hence their value fell in the middle ages. Orientals, especially the Mohammedans, we should say, set great store upon the emerald, believing that it imparts courage to the owner, that it is an infallible preservative of chastity, and that the pangs of women in childbirth is lessened by it. Like many other gems, the ancients ascribed some medicinal properties to it when ground down. The emerald is but rarely found perfect, and when perfect, it ranks next in value to the ruby. Perfect gems are worth from £40 to £40 the carat, but they do not, like the diamond or ruby advance in price with the size. There are many large emeralds in Europe. There is one in the Austrian museum weighing 2,000 carats, and the Duke of Devonshire possesses one weighing nine ounces. The value of the beryl or aquamarine is trifling. An enormous beryl was found in America weighing five tons. They must have excitement in that country bigger than even gold fever.

There are a large number of what may be termed valuable rather than precious stones, which belong to the quartz system. Among the most inelegant are carnelian, onyx, sardonyx, cornelian chrysolites, agate, jasper, blood-stone, etc., etc. Rock crystal has been used in the arts from the most remote times. It is found in large crystals sometimes, and is scattered all over the world. There is especially a mine in Dauphiny, near Paris, in mining three feet in diameter, and weighing 800 pounds. It is used in profusion for the lenses of spectacles, and in India it is hollowed into cups and goblets of amazing fairness and beauty. The Chinese, the Italians, and the Spaniards also use it for ornamental purposes. Like most precious stones, it is very hard, and the Japanese make balls of it to cool the hands. In old gothic times, crystal is often introduced, and it was considered that it would turn color if poison came near it, cups and goblets of it were often used by the great who went in fear of death in those days.

The indescent wonderful opal we are told is nothing but quartz and water. There are several kinds of opals, the chief of which are the precious or noble opal used by jewellers, the fire or reddish opal, the common opal, and the hydrophanous opal. When the different tints in an opal seem tributed equally over its surface, it is known in the trade as Harlequin. This is a trade way of designating the exquisite blending of hues which make this jewel so beautiful. The iridescence is owing to minute lines on the surface of the gem which decomposes the light, just as the same [illegible] is seen in mother of pearl. Steel lines ruled to be comparatively minute fibres to produce the same effect. The flashes of color in this precious stone or stones are most marked in a warm day, the knowledge that heat influences the brilliancy of the stone always leads the dealer to hold it in his hand for some time before showing it to his customer. Mr. Emanuel, referring to the fact that the Mexican opal loses its beauty when exposed to warmth—from the fact, we suppose, that the water fills up the fine fissures and prevents the decomposition of the rays of light into its primitive elements,—says that Sir Walter Scott finding fault Anne of Geierstein as called this fact to supernatural agency the stone came to be considered unlucky, and they consequently went out of fashion.

The opal reminds us somewhat of the pearl, a gem—if we may term a simple overgrown bivalve by that name—which has always been held in high estimation by mankind. The finest pearls come from the pearl fisheries of Ceylon. They are found in the shell of a large species of oyster, and it is believed, with much show of reason that they are nothing more than some foreign body which finds its way into the shell, and which the fish covers with a secretion similar to that with which it lines its shell. A pearl, when sawn though, shows that this secretion has been deposited in layers, one upon another, round one central body. Just in the same manner in which layers of phosphates are deposited in the human kidney round some foreign body, and resulting in the calculus or stone.

The Chinese with their singular ingenuity have taken advantage of this method of action on the part of the oyster, and have for ages been in the habit of inserting small objects inside its shell, in order to insure their being covered with this peculiar secretion.

Those who possess fine pearls should remember that they are liable to become discolored by contact with acids and gas, and noxious vapors of all kinds. This is the reason the chandeliers in her Majesty's Theatre were supplied with wax candles, and that in all the halls of the nobility and gentry, no lamp is used in India, as well as their pearls, not being improved by its powerful light.

All Sorts.

—The English at spend more than one half their working hours in public amusement which tends to develop lazy gorge and ripen the bodily powers. She rides a mile drives town upon the water drops plays chess, pumps the rope throws the drill hurls the quoits draws the bow, keeps up the shuttle-cock—and all this without having it passed upon her mind that she is wasting her time. She does this every day until it becomes a habit she will follow through life. Her frame, as a natural consequence, is larger her muscular system better developed, her nervous system in further subordination, her strength more enduring, and the whole tone of her mind is dull.

—A Berlin letter says: "The jewelry from the Royal Treasury worn by the Princess Alexandrine on the evening of her wedding day was worth 1,900,000 thalers, and it only taken out on grand occasions and with certain formalities. The crown called the Princess's is only worn on a single occasion that of the wedding. The necklace is composed of diamonds, varying in value from 20,000 to 30,000 thalers each. The central pendant is the famous Regent or Pitt diamond, which is regarded as the most valuable of the jewels of the Prussian crown.

A profound observer remarks "I have often observed at public entertainments that when there is anything to be seen, and everybody wants to see it everybody immediately stands up and effectually prevents anybody from seeing anything."

VERY LATEST NEWS.

THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

AN EXTENSIVE FORGERY IN BOSTON.

THE WAR BETWEEN BRAZIL AND PARAGUAY.

THE SOUTHERN BRAZILIAN EMIGRATION MOVEMENT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.

The Commercial's Washington special says: Congress will undoubtedly authorize the appointment of a commission to locate a new post office site in New York.

The semi-official exposition of the President's views on reconstruction and constitutional amendments creates quite an excitement here.

The statement which appeared a few days since in reference to the proposed purchase of the ocean steam Bombshell by the Government of Chili proves to be an unfounded rumor. Mr. Webb has no intention of disposing of her, while our government prizes her too highly to part with her. The ship will not be ready for service for some months yet.

The steamship Cuba, whose recent movements have been deemed suspicious, is now at Baltimore, taking cargo. She belongs to the Baltimore, Havana and New Orleans Steamship Line.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.

The report of the United States Revenue Commission has been laid before Congress. It includes recommendations for the enforcement of the laws, and the collection of revenue from all sources of revenue. The Commission also append reports of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and the Secretary of the Treasury approves of their recommendations, with the exception of the time within which payment of the principal of the public debt should commence.

NEW YORK, Jan 29.

The loan market is inactive at 5@6 per cent. Commercial paper passed at 6½@9, with very little offering.

The stock market is dull and unsettled. Government securities steady. Railroad shares dropping.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.

Some excitement was created on State street this morning, when the public were informed of an extensive and successful attempt at forging by some parties as yet unknown. It was discovered that the following forged checks on Boston banks were paid at different banks on Saturday.

Two checks on Stone & Downer, amounting to $5,000, were paid at the Merchants' National Bank; another for $6,000 on Messrs. J. H. Capp & Co. were paid by the Second National Bank, and two checks amounting to $4,800, on J. Hammett, were paid by the Bank of Commerce. In addition to the above, a check for $2,100 on Messrs E. P. Webster & Co., was presented at the Mt. Vernon National Bank, but was not paid, as there was no stamp upon it. A forged check on Mr. J. W. Davis for $2,400, was also presented at the Hide and Leather Bank, but payment was refused. The names of Bennett, Drake & Co., bankers at No. 88 State street, were forged on a check for $2,200 on the Second National Bank and was paid. The signature of the firm was very well executed. The money was paid without question.

BALTIMORE, Jan 29.

The steamer Richmond, of the Baltimore and Savannah line, which was wrecked on the shoals off Cape Hatteras on Wednesday, was valued at $90,000, and insured for $40,000 in New York offices. The most of the freight and cotton would be saved.

The Commercial's money market contains the following: Stocks continue weak, market strongly bearish and sellers options are still put out very largely. The side operating for a fall makes the best of the prevailing weakness and hammers the market with great persistency. The market is probably at present more largely oversold than for some months past. At the first board a concerted was used very successfully for depressing prices. It was announced that several thousand shares of the stock had been registered by the Jaites for peremptory sale. The result was a decline of 3¾ per cent at the first call, with a subsequent recovery of 1½ per cent. The report is a pure invention, and the fall of 2½ per cent on the several roads is chiefly due to it. Government stocks continue very dull, pending the uncertainty respecting the action of the Ways and Means Committee. A letter from a member of the Committee states that the Committee will not report in favor of a foreign loan and that other features of Mr. McCulloch's bill will be considerably modified. This information is received with much satisfaction and helps to strengthen the government.

Money is in fair demand on call, generally at 6 per cent, on stock collaterals and 5@6 on government. Sixty 5-20 bonds have been called in and replaced at 6 per cent. Discounts are moderately active.

Gold is stronger, partially in consequence of the very active demand for customs and partially owing owing to information favoring the rejection of Mr. McCulloch's proposal for a foreign loan. Foreign gold is in demand and scarce and the price touched 140 ½ at noon.

Foreign exchange is dull and after the large remittances of last week and the reported relief of pressure at London, the demand for Wednesday's steamer is not expected to be large.

The leading drawers quote six days sterling 108 3 4, but buyers hold back for a lower rate.

Prices of mining stocks bid: Boston Consolidated, 39, Copper Falls, 26, Franklin, 33 3 4, Hancock, 18 7 8, Isle Royal, 11, Minnesota, 17 3 4, Quincy, 54 1 4, Waterloo, 4, Bay State, 9 1 4, Boston Water Power, 24 1 2.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.

The steamship South America, which left Rio Janeiro January 26, at 4 p. m., via Bahia, Pernambuco, Para and St. Thomas, arrived at this port this afternoon. Among her passengers is Gen. Wood, agent of the Southern Brazil Emigration Enterprise.

The war between Brazil and Paraguay was still going on with vigor.

The main allied armies were at last accounts marching directly towards Pass Da Patria, where Gen. Caxias with his body of cavalry, was watching the Paraguayans, who had withdrawn across the Paranah.

Gen. Flores had formed a junction with Gen. Castrin's cavalry and was at Dobay, about one hundred miles southwest from Pass Da Patria.

About 5,000 troops arrived Corrientes for the Brazilian army, besides some cavalry, and more were on their way at Buenayres, Montevideo, and on their passage.

The iron-clad Tamandor had reached the city of Corrientes and was to join the fleet with some other vessels in a few days. The fleet remained before Corrientes, as last reported, inactive; but the river was rising and it was understood that when the allied armies arrived opposite Pass Da Patria, the fleet would co-operate and protect the crossing of the troops at that ford, where, however, the Paraguayans are posted in force and have fortifications and the French gunboat Alouette.

It is known that the small-pox had committed much ravage among the troops and citizens of that capital.

Lopez had issued another proclamation to his troops, exhorting them to fight valiantly against the enemies invading Paraguayan territory.

Helmstal is said to be protected by torpedoes laid down by a North American engineer. It is probable, however, that the army that will cross at Pass Da Patria will force its way to the rear of the fortress and capture it from the land side.

In Rio nothing of note has occurred.

The dispatch of troops to the Platte continues unabated.

The Anglo-Brazilian Times, speaking of the Southern emigration movement, says: "Gen. Wood goes by this packet to the United States, returning from his mission to this country, a mission which we trust will be productive of good. Gen. Wood has received the most cordial reception from the people of Brazil and the government of Brazil is prepared to furnish the facilities; and Gen. Wood's views as to the government furnishing one vessel gratuitously to the emigrants to every two furnished by the latter, has met with the sanction of the Minister of Agriculture."

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 29.

The Confederate General Master, tried by a military commission for the murder of seven Union prisoners, was acquitted and released from prison yesterday.

A steamer from the coast yesterday brought 300 freedmen from Sea Islands, returning to their old homes.

XXXIXth Congress—First Session.

SENATE—Jan. 29.

Mr. Grimes offered a joint resolution, tendering the thanks of Congress to Rear-Admiral Farragut, and the officers and men under him, for their gallant conduct in the engagement in Mobile Bay on the 5th of August, 1864. Referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. Sherman offered a bill, which was referred to the Military Committee, authorizing the President to appoint, at the request of any college capable of educating 100 young men, a military officer to act as President or Superintendent, and to give instruction in the military tactics.

Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill to grant a million acres of public lands for the use of the public schools of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Wilson called up the bill to restrict the amount for the collection of soldiers' claims to ten dollars.

Mr. Clark offered an amendment, which was adopted, excepting cases in which the accounting officer shall certify that the services rendered be worth more.

Mr. Trumbull called up the bill for the protection of all persons in their civil rights.

Mr. Trumbull offered an amendment to insert the following words after the enacting clause: "That all persons of African descent, born in the United States, are hereby declared to be citizens."

Mr. Trumbull then addressed the Senate in favor of the bill.

A resolution was introduced and referred to the Reconstruction Committee that no State or Territory shall make any distinction between citizens on account of race or color, and that all citizens, without distinction of race or color, shall be protected in full and equal exercise of all civil and political rights, including suffrage.

A bill was introduced increasing the number of cadets and raising the standard of admission to the military academy.

Mr. Ramsey, of Minn., presented a memorial from the St. Paul Board of Trade, asking for the improvement of the Upper Mississippi River and such commercial arrangements with the British Provinces as will secure the freedom of the Welland and St. Lawrence canals to American vessels, and the enlargement of those canals by the Canadian Government to a capacity sufficient for one thousand tons from Lake Superior and Chicago to the ocean; and also that a joint commission, representing the governments of the States and the Provinces, shall be authorized, with a view to establish a satisfactory system of reciprocal trade. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

HOUSE—Jan. 23.

Mr. Julian, of Ind., offered a resolution, which went over, that the people demand the trial of Jeff. Davis for treason and his execution if found guilty.

Maj. Gen. Sherman being in the hall, a recess of five minutes was declared. The Speaker conducted him to the Speaker's chair and introduced him in appropriate remarks, to which Gen. Sherman responded. Mr. Washburn, of Ill, proposed three cheers, which were enthusiastically given.

The debate on the constitutional amendment was then resumed.

Mr. Raymond, of N. Y., made a speech denying the positions heretofore assumed by Mr. Stevens and others, that the Southern States were out of the Union, and arguing that Congress is particularly restrained by the Constitution from doing anything to those States which we may not do in other States.

Producers Convention

BOARD OF TRADE, PITTSBURG, Jan 10 1866

Record meeting in convention adjourned to Bradford, all persons interested in the production of oil are invited to meet in convention at Bradford on Room, in Titusville, on the 1st day of February to take such action as may seem expedient towards a reduction of the tax on petroleum, and to the consideration of some other important interests. ALBERT H. FILLMORE, Secy

W COUNTY MEETING AT ARD OF TRADE ROOMS, Wednesday Evg, Jan. 31st.

Another Good Well at Titusville.

Good strike was made yesterday on the Guilford, a short distance east of the borough line. Oil producers who visited it yesterday report it 30 barrels. It is owned by a New York company, and was struck at a depth of 500 feet. It is a very unexpected development for that locality, and will stimulate operations.

Water Works for Titusville.

Titusville Oil and Water Company have made the arrangements for the erection of works, and the contract is let. Within a period of six months, it is understood, our city will be in the enjoyment of this luxury, and in consequence, and progress in city affairs, we will not have substantial street improvements only, but gain health in every section of the city.

Nothing is the pleasing to contemplate than a work of a new character in municipal progress, to every public spirited citizen rejoice, in the consummation. The subject of water works is not less important than the former, and many referred to are already casting about for public methods of making the public water supply proportion of the town is very made and supplied with water. The burning of the Academy and the recent fire near Main city fully demonstrate the fact. The remedy for but in case of conflagration these are utterly useless. But this defect can be very easily supplied. Church Run on the north side of the town would supply the town with water the year round, and the grade of ground is such as to render it by steam machinery quite inadequate in regulation of fires as any stream fire can. No reservoirs would be necessary. The size of the stream is such that through all parts of the year it would suffice a population of 30,000. The cost of such a system would be comparatively trifling, and the work could be completed in the [illegible] of the enterprise are too obvious to require mention. We hope to see it fully united with the opening of spring.

Anderson Farm Notes.—No 85, owned by Anderson Oil Co. Charles Page and Mr Bryson struck yesterday afternoon and is flowing, pumping the full size of the pipe.

No 95, same farm, owned by Ocean Oil Co. Special individuals holding small interests struck Saturday, the 27th, and is flowing 30 bbls per day.

Anderson's well, No 3, was tested the month after three hours pumping, the rush of oil was so great as to stop the descent of the rods and broke the machinery before the flow could be stopped. This is also on the same farm, on which precious piece of land are eighteen flowing wells and no dry hole.

Rich Run does intend to be far behind its neighbors in the oily race, and so No 24 Fay Messrs Wilson, Sprague, Coddington & Co. began on Saturday last to dig a gauge rate of two hundred barrels per day. There are scores for oil auditors, or Colchesters, to wells on these favored portions of oildom. It can hardly go amiss of getting a good the only question is whether he shall have a well or a larger one, or a larger one.

By the way, we hear of a good strike on the farm on Pancake, near this place, as we go to press yesterday. We hope for the best, but we want to speak without fuller advices.

Oil Items.—The Record states that "Col" Smith was arrested at Titusville on Saturday on a charge of defrauding Col. J. F. Duncan of $[illegible]

J. J. Wilson of Indiana, has been elected superintendent of the Oil Creek and Pithole Railroad. Major Wilson is one of the Directors of the Oil and Land Company.

Clam Well, on Morey Farm is now flowing at the rate of 400 barrels per day.

Sucker rods of the Ellsworth Well were put on Saturday afternoon and the well has had a flow of two hundred barrels per day. The water is still in and when that is drawn longer yield may be expected.

City of London Well and the Holmes and Smith Well have both stopped, being tapped by gushering wells.

Satterlee Well is much troubled by the sand on account of the rock cutting them as they dig out down.

Wealth Entombment.—The Meadville Gazette has enlarged its pages by the addition of two columns, not so much with a view to meet the demands of advertisers as to win the public attention. Meadville is capable of sustaining a first class daily journal, and the proprietor of the Gazette is equally capable of rendering it excellent. If we are disappointed the first will only prove that we have over estimated the public spirit of the community. It is to us, too, that the town has as much at stake in the enterprise of this kind as the publisher. A sustained daily newspaper is the best advertisement of the thrift and energy of any town.

Disaster in Drama.—The Buffalo Courier gives an amateur dramatic performance for the benefit of a benevolent society. One scene of the entertainment is described as follows:

A scene in a Titusville Court House, where a prisoner is discharged and another recognized for the thieves, duly labeled, are followed by a Vigilance Committee, made a couple of suns, and the part conducted under the direction of a prominent police official, made a deal of merriment."

Legislative Corruption.

The Legislature of Pennsylvania has learned that the impression is fast gaining ground with the public that money and outside pressure is necessary to pass any important bill through that body, however meritorious the bill itself may be.

Two committees were appointed at the last session, one by the Senate and one by the House, to inquire into some alleged attempt to procure by corrupt means the passage of an act authorizing the consolidation of the Atlantic and Great Western Railway Co., and it appears from the reports of these committees that one Albert R. Schofield, of Philadelphia Lawyer, evidently in the employ of the Central R. R. Co., was instrumental in inducing an agent of the A. & G. W. Co. to believe that the use of money was necessary and customary in procuring legislation. This sum, Schofield, who would have been the most important witness before the committee, seems to have kept himself out of their way, and now that it is proposed to instruct the Speaker of the Senate to issue his warrant for the appearance of Schofield in the city of the Senate, there are members who object to any further proceedings on account of the consuming moral time and the expense which will be required.

In this, things appear very much like an attempt of the Pennsylvania railroad monopoly to escape conviction of its own guilt, by trying the city of stop the P. against the A. & G. W. Co. We give below part of the report of the committee, as read in the Senate on Tuesday, 23d inst., by Mr. Lowry.

The following facts seem to be clearly established by the testimony thus obtained, viz:

First. That thirty thousand dollars were sent to Harrisburg, during the last session of the Legislature, to be used in procuring the passage of the bill in question, or in return by one of the witnesses, to pay necessary expenses incurred in getting it through.

Second. That Mr. Tallow Jackson, of Philadelphia, agent for Mr. James M. Hurst, attorney for the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad company, procured from Mr. Samuel Wain, in one of a set of Mr. Hurst's in New York, the sum of $25,000 of this money, and that he sent the said $25,000 to Harrisburg by the hands of his brother, Mr. John Jackson.

Third. That Mr. Albert R. Schofield, of Philadelphia, was instrumental in inducing Tallow Jackson to believe that the employment of money was necessary in procuring passage of the bill in question, or, in other words, that the said bill could not be passed without the employment of money, and that it had $25,000 of the said money was placed in his possession.

Fourth. Upon the exposure made in Senators Bentlett and Hopkins, and the appointment of the committee of investigation, the said $25,000 were returned to Mr. Johnson in full.

Fifth. That the additional $5,000 were returned to the house of Mr. George North, by one of his agents, David Dawson, Messrs Northrop, White and Schofield. And that no part of the said $30,000 is returned to Mr. Jackson.

Sixth. That the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad Company, in such, was not so far is now known responsible for any part of this transaction, nor does any of the officers of the company therein.

Seventh. That none of the money was paid to or received by any member or officer of either branch of the Legislature or of the Government.

The committee submitted seven witnesses, in all, viz: C. L. Ved, John H. Brunner, Tallow Jackson, John Jackson, Wm. H. White, George Northrop and Albert R. Schofield.

Messrs. Ved, Brunner, Wm. Tallow Jackson and Northrop have appeared and submitted their testimony.

Mr. Schofield declined to appear before the committee, and submitted a brief containing his reasons therefor, of which the following is a copy:

PHILADELPHIA, May 2, 1865.

DEAR SIR: With all due deference to the honorable committee of which you are chairman, I regret from professional reasons, which must be obvious to you, that I am not able to testify as requested in your letter of the 19th inst.

I have, personally, your obedient servant,

ALBERT R. SCHOFIELD, Attorney at Law,
No. 1322 North Twelfth Street.

Your committee have reason to believe that Mr. Albert R. Schofield, Mr. Wm. H. White and Mr. George Northrop, were of one mind in this matter, and that they combined to extract $30,000 from Mr. Tallow Jackson by fraud and misrepresentations, and that after a protracted collusion, a sum of the original bill and of his bill, to which bill it was now apparent Schofield intended to divert the money by interception. He did not intend to pay any part of it to any member of either branch of the Legislature. That they did not appropriate to their use the $5,000 and that, but for the exposure in the Senate and the appointment of this committee, the balance of the money, to wit, $25,000, would have been illegally retained and divided among them.

Your committee would express their regret that one of the principal witnesses have declined to testify in the case, thus rendering the testimony somewhat defective, and placing himself in an unenviable attitude in relation to this matter. While Mr. Tallow Jackson, who employed this witness in his attorney, has come forward and with candor which does him credit, given every his testimony, this witness has, we think, very improperly sheltered himself under the pretext of professional duty. It is for the Senate to say how he shall be protected by this course.

In conclusion your committee feel called to report that they have examined all the witnesses in the case that it was in their power to call, and recommend that the Speaker issue his warrant for Mr. Albert R. Schofield, who has evaded the committee by refusing to testify, and that he be brought before the bar of the Senate to answer such interrogatories touching the subject of this investigation as may be propounded to him.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. B. LOWRY,
W. M. RANDALL,
WILMER WORTHINGTON,
Committee.

The following appears in the report of a similar committee before the House on Wednesday, 24th inst.

The committee could obtain no evidence that any portion of the money, either directly or indirectly, ever reached any member of the Legislature or officer of the Government.

This being the result of our investigation, it would seem as though we should have stop and consider our report.

But the committee would do, were it not for the fact that the impression is fast gaining ground with the public, and the course of these man tends to confirm in almost general belief, that money and outside pressure is necessary to pass any important bill, however meritorious and just it may be through the Legislature and if this is the general belief concerning the Pennsylvania Legislature, is it not high time that our eyes opened and we disabused of the impression? It has notorious fact that the lobbies of the Legislature at every session are infested by a horde of men, of what are called professional lobbyers who either have or pretend to have the fate of all important bills in their special keeping. They form a kind of guard around the Legislative Halls, through whose clutches the members of our laws must be reached.

Then counsel sign may not always be the same but in this instance, at least, it would seem to have been money.

The most attractive and active of the lobbyists during the last session of the Legislature was this same Albert R. Schofield, professing to attend to the interests of the Pennsylvania railroad company.

Hence we presume his invaluable refusal to appear before us and testify.

How much influence and to what extent it is exerted by the lobbyists is made evident by the facts adduced from the testimony of Mr. Northrop.

Last this sum, half paid, all only before leaving Harrisburg this session, for two or three weeks and $5,000 returned as too scarcely opposed, and that the influence of money was too powerful to contest successfully.

The committee had no knowledge of the fact, and the Record does not show that the bill was given before the Legislature at any time previous to its passage.

The excitement at Petroleum Center is on the increase. The Rochester House is constantly crowded with guests. It has lately been enlarged to meet the public want, and offers as pleasant accommodations and as enticing fare as any hotel in the oil region.

The remains of the late Noah Goodrich reached Syracuse on Friday noon, and the funeral services took place at St. Paul's church.

Amateur Dramatic Performance.

Editors Morning Herald

I notice in your last issue an account of an amateur dramatic performance at Enterprise, for charitable purposes, and the idea strikes me that a similar "enterprise" on the part of some of our own community would afford both pleasure and profit thus. We have a Culver Literary Association who are devising means to secure a public library. The lecture course is generally suggested, but it is obviously too late in the season to accomplish much in that way, and besides, it is very one known, there lecturers seldom any profit after paying the lecturer, and hall expenses. But an amateur dramatic performance is at once novel and entertaining. It enlists a goodly number of persons for its rendition, and of course interests the whole community in its success. It is a source of innocent and cultivating pastime to all who participate in the performance and affords the general public an opportunity of contributing to a praiseworthy enterprise, while at the same time instilling themselves or a rare exhibition.

There is no doubt in a under proper management an amateur dramatic performance could be given in Corinthian Hall that would realize a profit of $400 or $500 to the Association, which is a pretty substantial nucleus for a library fund. The ladies, of course, would be indispensable to the success of the entertainment, and as they are always ready to assist in every good work, we may presume they would lend as their aid on this occasion.

I throw out these suggestions with the hope that some reader will second them. Let us have an amateur dramatic performance for the benefit of the Culver Literary Association.

PRESENTATION TO MR. BOUGHTON.—Mr. R. H. Boughton the efficient and courteous station agent of the O. C. R. R. was on Saturday evening, made the recipient of a handsome silver pitcher, at the hands of the oil shippers. We admire the taste of the donors in presenting such, and trust that it to the recipient to dispose of it as he should see fit. The presentation was made through Mr. C. I. Wheeler, who accompanied the gift with the following appropriate expression:

R. H. Boughton Esq.—Dear Sir—It has been well said that virtue is its own reward, and seldom to will have it. I and me the truth, and yet we do so on this occasion, notwithstanding the fact that we do it in upon principle not looking for or expecting any compensation in equipping conscience. We, I feel, should not be satisfied when we know, if in our efforts to conscientiously discharge our duties, have met the approval of those in whose interests we have labored.

Actuated by such feelings a number of gentlemen whom I have the honor to represent within the county, have commissioned me to present to you this pitcher, containing $60, as a little token of our entire appreciation of your kindness and all other efforts to please us. We are in common testimony of our side, that Mr. O. C. R. R. has in spite of the many complaints of rolling over this course, and as a solid memorial of our respect for you as an upright man.

Accept, sir, and I pray you, each individual dollar carries with it an amount of our respect and esteem large enough for words to express fully. He feels little, who can tell how much.

Mr. Boughton replied as follows:

SIR,—I am quite the overwhelmed, and not at all capable of expressing my thanks for this magnificent present in language appropriate to the occasion. I therefore ask your indulgence if I decline to attempt to reply to your flattering remarks approaching so close to a of this station and bring you to believe I possess a heart that feels and appreciates your kindness, though the tongue fail to express it to its pumpings.

As indicative of the pleasant relations existing between Mr. Boughton and the oil shippers it is creditable to the gentlemen of the donors as it is gratifying to the recipient.

NEW HOTEL AT SHELTER.—Since the destruction of the principal portion of the village of Shelter by fire including some of the public hotels, an impression has gone out that the travelling public are without respectable accommodations. For a time, it is true this was well seriously felt, but the wide awake community, not at all discouraged by the calamity, energetically set themselves to work to rebuild the waste place.

Among the new houses erected is that of Dennison & Johnson, directly opposite the railroad station. It is a spacious and comfortable hotel with a capacity for dining 600 guests and lodging room for 100. It is fitted up in luxurious style and is highly creditable to the good taste and enterprise of the proprietors. The furniture was purchased in Pittsburgh and is of new. The proximity to the depot renders the hotel peculiarly convenient for railroad passengers, who can reach it without crossing the track, by alighting on the right side. Mess. Dennison & Johnson are experienced hotel keepers, and intend to spare no pains or expense in rendering their stop after stopping place for the travelling public. The house will be thrown open on Thursday morning, and the general patronage is solicited.

COMPLIMENTARY BENEFIT.—Compliments are not all played out yet, for many of the friends of M. B. Leavitt, the favorite Comedian of our town are to tender him a complimentary benefit on Thursday evening at Corinthian Hall. Mr. Leavitt will be assisted on this occasion by his brother J. P. Leavitt, a popular Comedian and comedian, who has not yet appeared before Titusville audience, but who will perform very marketable tomboriné solo on this occasion. Several other performers have also volunteered their services and will appear in their appropriate parts. The whole affair will conclude with a grand [illegible] tickets are good for both the performance and the hall. For particulars see advertisement. Mr. Leavitt a extensive circle of acquaintance in Titusville, and the peculiar and amusing features of the entertainment offered will doubtless gain him a crowding house.

MONS. AND MADAME NAVONI will organize a dancing school at Petroleum Hall on Friday evening next. They will also give instructions in vocal and instrumental music at the same place. Mons. Navoni has leased Petroleum Hall for the season, for the above purpose. He will give a social hop every week for the benefit of the general public, and the first of these will take place on Thursday evening next.

Spurgeon's Morning Sermon.

SUMMARY.

A Visit to the Tabernacle—Description of Spurgeon—Spurgeon's Style and Oratory, etc.

From the Toronto Globe.

Being in London, on Sunday, November 5th, I sought Mr. Spurgeon's Metropolitan Tabernacle, and enjoyed the privilege of hearing a sermon from the celebrated pastor. I went early in order to secure a seat, but found an ecclesiastical policeman at the outer gate, who refused to let me in before the crowd assembled. Fortunately, a gentleman passing in to a prayer meeting, was polite enough to ask me to go with him—which I was glad to do. I found about a hundred persons in a lecture room at the rear of the building. The burden of the prayers seemed to be that a blessing might attend the public services of the day. Occasionally I heard a Methodistic response, and at the close of the meeting one of Dr. Hunter's hymns was sung.

A PIECE OF STRATEGY.

At the close of the meeting I followed the rest through a private door into the main audience room, and by this means easily found a good seat in front of the pulpit. The crowd surpassed anything I had ever seen within walls. The floor will seat, I should think, 3,000 people, while a double tier of wide galleries run clear around the building. There must have been nearly 6,000 people present. It was a dark, lowering morning, and the fog had so filled the room that it was impossible to see distinctly, and the ghostly light of 300 gas burners did very little to help the matter. There was a hum of voices all over the vast room, with that lack of reverence which for some strange reason is nearly always shown in churches where there is an unusual crowd. I could not judge well as to the standing of the people, but they all seemed at least respectable, and not a few elegantly dressed.

THE PREACHER APPEARS—HUMMING AND BUZZING.

At precisely ten minutes to eleven, Mr. Spurgeon took his seat in the pulpit, and spent a few moments in silent prayer. Glancing up, he took a hurried survey of the crowd, and then stepping forward to the railing—of course he stands in no box—called out in a ringing voice, "Let us pray." In a second the humming ceased and all heads were bowed forward. The opening prayer was about five minutes in length, and was exceedingly appropriate and full of unction and fervor. The moment it ceased, the buzzing re-commenced. A hymn was announced, and the congregation requested to sing it to the tune of "Georgia." The preacher lined it out, one stanza at a time, seldom looking at the hymn book, in a manner which seemed to say to the congregation that they ought to and must sing it. And they did sing. There was no instrument of any kind in the house; but a chorister, backed by about twenty singers of both sexes, stood in the aisle and led the congregation. I glanced all around, and it seemed to me that nearly every one had a book and journal in the singing. All around and above the voice of praise rolled out like the voice of many waters. The preacher joined with the rest, singing as if he enjoyed it heartily.

THE MORNING LESSONS.

Next came the morning lessons, the first being Hannah's prayer, and the second the 116th Psalm. These were read and commented on, verse by verse, the whole occupying 20 minutes. Some of the expository remarks were exceedingly striking, and at times thrusts were made which must have gone home to many present. The talking had ceased, but an incessant coughing was kept up, which for a time threatened to break the speaker's voice. He stopped and begged them to cough less, if they could possibly avoid it in such a fog, but his request was little heeded. As he read on he had occasion to speak of our propensities to honor the great at the expense of the poor. "When a great statesman dies"—in a moment the coughing ceased—"some ministers must needs go out of the way to lauds him as a saint, while the poor man, who lived saint, goes unknown and unnoticed to his grave." Here was a thrust at Dr. Cumming's toadyism in preaching a patronizing sermon on Lord Palmerston. No names were used, but the Apocalyptic divine was easily recognized as claiming a share of the caustic rebuke which followed. This done, the coughing began as before. After the reading, another short hymn was sung, during which Mr. Spurgeon called out for them to sing more quickly, and was obeyed most literally.

A LONG PRAYER.

Next came the prayer. It was a long prayer, occupying twenty minutes, but it was in no sense tedious. It could hardly have been better adapted to its purpose. Evidently, multitudes in their prayers to God, had come very near to the border of irreverence, but I could well overlook this. The man was evidently absorbed in the most simple but fervent prayer. "In the throne, the Mediator, and a great cloud of witnesses" were before him, and he was pleading for their varied wants. After the prayer, another hymn was sung, and then followed the sermon.

THE TEXT AND SERMON.

He announced for his text the 7th and 8th verses of the 116th Psalm. He proceeded to say that he would speak of God's method of exalting his "chosen ones," where they were found—how found; how raised up, and where placed. "Or," said he, "if you want a theme after the manner of the novelists, I can state mine, and a grand one it is, 'from the dunghill to the throne,' that is my theme." Taking up the first head, he spoke on more than half an hour, and was consequently obliged to hurry over the rest of the sermon, some points being barely alluded to. Of course he spoke extempore, and much of his sermon was evidently impromptu. He preached for an hour and a quarter, and closing somewhat abruptly, dismissed us with the benediction.

THE SECRET OF HIS POWER.

I have read much about what critics choose to call "the secret of Mr. Spurgeon's power," as there must need be some hidden charm by which he maintains his popularity and power. One says it is his magical voice; another that it is his buffoonery, and a third that it is his "sensation" style, and so on. It is a marvel to me how any one who has ever heard him can talk about any one special element of power which he has; for it certainly seems to me that he is possessed in a remarkable degree of nearly every element which enters into the composition of the orator—at least the kind of orator which his position calls for. Space will not permit me to mention more than a few of them.

First, he gains much by eschewing all those pulpit mannerisms which hedge so many ministers. He has no elongated visage, no drawling or whining voice, no stiff postures, no fancy gestures, but he stands there, looking and talking, and acting simply like Mr. R. Spurgeon. In short, he is himself in the pulpit.

MR. SPURGEON'S VOICE AND GENERAL STYLE.

His voice is good; not musical or "magical"—whatever may be meant by that word—but clear, ringing, and distinct. He is deliberate, and his enunciation is very good. I had expected to listen to guttural mutterings, but was disappointed.

His style, if not the best in itself is certainly the best for him. If you ask me what his style is, I don't know that I can answer better than by saying that it consists in being no style at all. He would not flatter himself so far as to be found to say one peculiar style, but is prepared to sacrifice everything to power—immediate effect on his hearers. He talks right at them; is simple as a teacher in a school-room, uses a multitude of apt illustrations, dallies little with rhetoric, is intensely in earnest, and essays nothing flashy or grand. He is hardly ever vehement, but always animated. He lacks in taste; is coarse, and sometimes indecent; but, perhaps, this is but a slight drawback in the eyes of the great multitude before him, gathered in from all quarters of such a city as London. Besides, he might say in his defence, that there is far too much pottery about the modern pulpit, and that he, perhaps, is judged by a false standard.

SAXON WORDS.

Another element of his power is found in his choice of words. He is partial to Saxon. The most illiterate can understand all he says. I have heard men preach whose sermons were as obscure as the text books of their theology—the very idioms of Watson or Butler being frequently adopted. As well they might preach in Cheskiew, as for as nine-tenths of their hearers are concerned. Mr. Spurgeon is not of this class. He speaks as if he wished to be understood.

CHOICE OF TOPICS.

It is in his choice of topics, however, that he shows the most skill. He deals with live questions—simple questions often—but questions, nevertheless, which are uppermost in his hearers' minds. He brings religion and its claims to them as they are—not as the ancients were. He remembers that little matters make up the sum of mankind's lives, and he spends much time on these little matters, which too many never mention in the pulpit. Domestic cares, troubles and vexations—one-half of the world's misery—are touched by him. Nor does he merely deal on a few platitudes about "the uncertain vicissitudes of this present probationary stage of existence," but he drags right down to it—the scolding, slandering, gossiping, sinning, giving, praying, helping and loving—which the masses understand and appreciate. But while not omitting these, he does his those greater interests which affect the nation, the church, or the community, on his mind and heart.

REGARD FOR THE POOR AND FORSAKEN.

Still another source of this man's great success is found in the fact that he delights in inviting the poor, the outcast, and the fallen to his church and to his Saviour. There is a strange power which attends the Gospel when offered to the poorest, and the most degraded, and the most fallen. From the time that Jesus startled Judea by inviting publicans and harlots to enter into the kingdom of heaven, down to the present hour, it has ever been noticed that unwonted power attends the offer of Divine mercy to those for whom the world has no mercy. It is a reproach to the Christianity of our age—a source of its weakness—that while the abandoned are numbered by thousands in all our cities, our pulpits are too polite to invite them to Church, our churches too respectable to receive them, and both the church and pulpit too cowardly to rebuke their destroyers.

I shall never forget Mr. Spurgeon's appeals, as, with uplifted hands, he called on the gamblers, the thieves, the abandoned women, and the murderers, to come to the Saviour, who turned no one away. A thrill ran through the vast crowd as he cried out that innumerable multitudes of those once fallen low as any one present could be, now stood before the throne in robes made white in the Blood of the Lamb.

CARVER'S
DOUBLE ACTING
OIL PUMP.
This pump consists of two barrels, one within the other, and each having its separate valves and acting independently of the other. The action is
and as much oil is raised at the DOWNWARD
UPWARD STROKE.
THE DOUBLE SET OF VALVES
allows the FREE ESCAPE of gas through one or the other of the barrels, without affecting the pumping and thus enables the pump to work without obstruction in wells where the common pump cannot be worked at all.
AN IMPROVED PISTON
of double the strength of the old one has been invented which will be supplied FREE to all parties using the old sliding valve in these pumps. These pumps have now been used on over one hundred wells, and we give below a few of the certificates we have received, and ask a careful perusal of the same.
BURTIS, HART & BURROWS, Agts.
Over Petroleum Bank, Titusville, Pa.

TESTIMONIALS:
TITUSVILLE, Nov. 27, 1865.
Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
I am now using Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump in a well belonging to the Pennsylvania Oil Co., and can pump more oil with less power than with the common pump, and without the expense from gas, breaking of sucker rods, &c. It is in fact superior to any other pump, in my estimation, for pumping oil, and gives most perfect satisfactory
K. J. TOMPKINS,
Superintendent.

ELLENVILLE WELL, Watson Flats, Oil Creek, Pa., Nov. 25, 1865.
Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
I have used and been acquainted with the working of Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump in our wells and in other wells during the past summer and fall, and consider this pump far superior to the pumps in common use in oil wells, and have no hesitation in saying that it will raise double the amount of fluid from a well with a given amount of steam than can be raised with a common pump.
JOSEPH A. SCOTT,
Supt. Ross Farm.

OFFICE OF ALICE OIL CO., OIL CREEK, PA., Nov. 27, 1865.
Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
I have used in our wells and been acquainted with Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump for the last five months. In case of wells it was impossible to work the common pump on account of the gas, Carver's pump worked without difficulty in this well. I think Carver's pump will pump twice as much oil as any other pump with the same amount of steam.
CHAS. LANING, Supt.

UNION WELL, West Hickory Run, Pa., Nov. 24, 1865.
Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
We pumped the Union Well, on West Hickory Run, about twelve days with the pump ordinarily used in oil wells, and could not obtain to exceed one barrel of oil per day. About the 20th of Sept. last we put one of Carver's Double Acting Petroleum Pumps into the well, and the quantity of oil was immediately increased, and the well is now producing 15 barrels per day.
T. M. FOSTER.

CHAMPION WELL, Pioneer Run, Oil Creek, Pa., Nov 24, 1865.
Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
This well was pumped about six weeks with the common working barrel, giving an average production of about 30 barrels per day. The gas in this well was so strong as to keep us idle about one half the time requiring sucker rods, working beams, &c. We then put down Carver's Double Acting Petroleum Pump and pumped it eleven weeks without being detained for repairs, &c., to exceed two hours in all. During this time the production of the well was brought up to an average of 70 barrels per day, and on some days 86 barrels. This pump worked without any interruption from gas.
GEO. C. BARTLETT, Supt.

FOREST FARM, Pithole City, Venango county, Penn., Nov. 20, 1865.
This is to certify that I remained operating the Mc Clay well, Mc Clay Farm, about the first of April last, and after testing it for three months, in which time it pumped out of 40 fours—ascertained that the well would produce ten barrels per day, not to exceed four days per week, long detained by breakage of sucker rods and machinery, at least two days each week. I then put in place of Carver's Patent Double Acting Pump, which increased the daily yield within two weeks to 15 barrels per day, which is the present production per day. It is out two months since the sucker rods have been taken out or even the slightest breakage occurred. I have at present eight of these pumps in operation and would use no other
N. H. PAYNE, Supt.
For Dr. M. C. Egbert.

OFFICE OF THE MAPLE SHADE OIL CO., Oil Creek, Nov. 20, 1865.
Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
We are using Carver's Pump in the Coquette and Paris wells, and propose to introduce them into all our wells, as we consider them to be the best pumps made for pumping oil, and will therefore use no others.
W. H. GOODWIN,
dec4tf Supt. Maple Shade Oil Co.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.
For the treatment of Private Diseases, on the French System.
DR. E. J. REYNOLDS, Proprietor
W. B. LISPENARD, M. D.
Consulting Physician and Surgeon, Rochester, N. Y.
Dr. LISPENARD is one of the most scientific and successful Physicians and Surgeons in the United States. His name is personally known in every city and village in the Union and the British Provinces.
Dr. REYNOLDS announces to the sick and unfortunate, that his hospital is still open for the reception of patients, and that he is daily making rapid and permanent cures in all parts of the United States and Canadas, with his concentrated remedies, which are prepared by Express, sealed, to all parts of the world. The wrong quacks, nostrum vendors and impostors with which this city and other parts of the Union is flooded, renders it necessary to caution the public against knaves, some of whom have added Doctor of Medicine to their names to give them the appearance of respectability. Dr. J. is prepared to guarantee those who call for help with any form of private disease, that his cures are the most remarkable on record, and his remedies the wonder of the profession, and the admiration of the sick.
By a long course of safety and practical experience Dr R. has won the gratification of preventing the unfortunate with remedies that have never failed since he first introduced them, to cure the most aggravating cases, and that in a very short and reasonable time, without the aid of mercury or any other deleterious drug. Within the last forty years Dr R. has cured more than one hundred and forty thousand cases of the above character, and it has been and safely that more than one half of the patients had been previously treated with mercury and other mineral poisons.
Married or Single Ladies.
All female complaints, of whatever name or nature, are treated by him successfully. The most critical rooms are always in reserve for ladies who may wish to consult or be with regard to any of those interesting complaints to which their delicate organization renders them liable.
N. B.—Dr Reynolds is sole agent for Dr. Vichnis Female Monthly Pills. Among the many thousands of these pills annually sold, not one complaint has yet been made against them. Ladies in a certain situation should not use them, the particulars of which will be found in the directions accompanying each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to any part of the World. Beware of counterfeits. These are not on sale at any other place in the United States.
Dr. Reynolds' FRENCH SAFE is warranted safe and sure preventative against pregnancy and disease. Price $1. Sent by mail to any part of the Union.
Young Men
Who, by indulging in secret habits, have contracted that solitary habit and deep-rooted, body-destroying vice, should apply to Dr. Reynolds without delay.
In these as well as all other cases of private nature Dr. Reynolds communicates early application and without any vanity or aspiration, decidedly states that no case within the reach of mortal aid should ever leave him with out a cure or satisfaction given.
Dr. Reynolds' Great Work, THE PRIVATE MEDICAL GUIDE, beautifully illustrated, with nearly 200 pages. Price 50 cents.
Letters describing age, symptoms, occupation &c., properly attended to, and medicines, securely sealed from observation, sent to all parts of the world.
No letters will be answered unless they contain a remittance of one dollar, consultation fee. Consultation at the Office free of charge.
Consulting Rooms and Operating Rooms, corner of Mill and Market streets, up stairs. ☞ Patients calling will see no one but the Doctor.
The above concentration of medical talent assures the sick a scientific and improved course of treatment and a rapid and permanent cure. All letters addressed Dr E. J. Reynolds, Rochester, N. Y. will meet with prompt attention.
